In this session, we will focus on why innovation inside of your organization—no matter the industry—must become a core competency in order to prosper in the years ahead.

We will discuss some of the leading technologies that you need to be aware of and examples of how they've changed or are changing industries and markets.

There will also be a focus on how to get your organization to embrace innovative thinking—allowing you to break through some of the barriers that stymie change.

Finally, our presenter will talk through how he plans on disrupting an industry and the steps he has taken to plan and execute on a current market opportunity.
